Active in her school community, in addition to being a member of the field hockey and swim team, Jill is the Brandywine School District Anti-Bullying Ambassador. Jill has spoken at many of the schools in the district, sharing her experiences with students of all ages. As a victim of bullying, Jill has become a champion for bullying prevention in schools.

Carol Todd is a mother of two, and an advocate for many. She was a typical hard working mom, whose days were filled with regular activities until on October 10, 2012. Her world tragically changed when her beloved daughter Amanda took her own life after a never ending struggle as a victim of cyberbullying and exploitation in her everyday life. Through the pain of losing her daughter, Carol courageously took a stand and shared Amanda's story with her community and the world. Known as a global advocate she is sharing the voice of her daughter and increasing awareness of bullying in all forms and mental health issues in our youth.
